

Application Note: AN01011

DSP performance on XS1-L devices

This application note describes some of the DSP features the XMOS L-family of devices provide and how they could be used in an example application. The second part of this document describes in more detail how the L1 USB Audio reference design can be modified to include Biquad Filters to provide equalizer functionality.